UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE EIGHTH CIRCUIT

Case No. 25-3497

Jonathan Daniel Clements,
Appellant-Plaintiff,

v.

State of Arkansas, et al.,
Appellees-Defendants.

SUPPLEMENTAL NOTICE TO THE COURT REGARDING ECCLESIASTICAL TRUST PLATE AND STANDING

Comes now the Appellant, Jonathan Daniel Clements, in full lawful standing and under ongoing jurisdiction of the unrebutted ECC-TRUST-JDC-005, to provide supplemental notice to this Honorable Court of Appeals regarding the current charges against Appellant in the lower court, specifically in Booneville, Arkansas, as they pertain to alleged violations involving a vehicle's registration and license plate status.

Appellant was charged with "fictitious tags" and "expired registration" despite the clear and visible display of an ecclesiastical trust plate affixed to the subject vehicle. The vehicle is properly marked as ECCLESIASTICAL PRIVATE TRUST PROPERTY – NOT FOR HIRE – NON-COMMERCIAL – PRIVATE TRUST VEHICLE, consistent with lawful non-commercial use and in alignment with the governing principles of the trust corpus and its legal instruments.

This supplemental notice serves to establish that the vehicle in question has never been commercial property, is not for hire, and is fully under ecclesiastical jurisdiction. The trust plate displayed at the time of the alleged offense is evidence of standing and status, both of the trust vehicle and the jurisdiction under which it operates. This evidence rebuts the presumption of state authority over the property, particularly in light of the active appellate stay and the ongoing Article III jurisdiction asserted in this matter.

The attached photographic evidence, presented to this court for the record, confirms the language and appearance of the trust plate. This visual confirmation supports Appellant's assertion that the underlying charges are incompatible with the trust's ecclesiastical designation, non-commercial status, and current appellate protections.

This court is respectfully requested to take judicial notice of this supplemental fact and incorporate this into the totality of review in evaluating the lower court's continuing interference with property and person under higher jurisdiction. The record must reflect that the Appellant's transportation falls under ecclesiastical authority and is therefore outside the reach of state commercial enforcement under the trust's unrebutted legal position.

Respectfully submitted,
Jonathan Daniel Clements
Appellant and Living Trust Executor
